

Norbert Haslacher
Chief Executive Officer
FREQUENTIS AG

Norbert Haslacher's background includes more than two decades in the area of technology solutions, services and consulting. He has held positions with increasing levels of responsibility during this time, among others that of Chief Executive Officer Austria and Eastern Europe for the US based IT company CSC.

In April 2015, Mr. Haslacher joined the Frequentis Executive Board. Prior to his assignment as Frequentis CEO in April 2018, Mr. Haslacher was directly responsible for the sales and marketing organisations. His experience and extensive IT expertise is integral to the strategic focus of the company to foster further development within the Frequentis Group. His leadership of the expansion of the Group's international business, based on its innovative IT- and software-centric product portfolio, is a foundation for securing an even stronger global presence.

During his tenure at CSC, Mr. Haslacher held roles leading business development and sales for the Banking industry in Germany and the Middle East, leading the CSC Consulting organization and prior to this time consulting for Coopers & Lybrand Consulting.

Born in 1970, he holds a diploma in Business Economics from the Business School St. Gallen. Married with two children; in his free time, he enjoys outdoor activities such as skiing, travelling the world, and discovering new cultures.

In his function as Frequentis CEO, Norbert Haslacher emphasises the high potential of the Frequentis Group for further growth: "Frequentis has excellent employees and a competitive international portfolio for safety-critical industries. My goal is to sustainably expand our strong position in the global market."
